

Roger's Personal Profile

Roger came to NEJ Stevenson in 1996, initially as part of a 'double-act', working with his son Stuart on a self-employed basis. Having trained as a carpenter and joiner straight from school, together they installed the company's furniture, often in the UK but occasionally in destinations as far away as New York and Moscow (where Roger celebrated his 50th birthday with Neil, our MD).

In 2002, Roger's son Stuart decided it was time to do his own thing, and having got to know his keen eye for detail the Company offered Roger a full-time contract. Hoping to reduce the amount of extensive travelling he had conducted on behalf of the Company Roger wished to return to the joinery side of the business utilising once more his skills with our desire for not just cabinet makers but good people. The Company duly accepted much to the delight of Jane (Roger's beautiful partner) and his three grandchildren.

As one of the Company's most affable people, his nature means he gets on with everyone, from his colleagues at work to the Company's regular clients' and suppliers, no-one can fail to be engaged by his kind and friendly personality. So celebrating his 50th birthday whilst in Moscow, and his 60th here in the UK, the Company organised a celebration at work for him with his colleagues and friends.

Roger who is affectionately known as our 'silver surfer' thanks to his interest in computers, now has the time to enjoy his garden and indulge his other interests such as helping his brother develop his Spanish property, and his love of local food.

For those of you who have yet to talk with Roger, we're sure you will meet him and his colleagues on our next 'Open Day'.
